Wizard Junior Card Game A

Wizard Junior uses the same game play as its older brother, Wizard, with players bidding on the number of tricks they will take during a hand, but simplifies things for the younguns so they can get a handle on trumps and tricks. Wizard Junior uses colors instead of suits, and each color has fewer cards than the 13 used in the original game. The game

NEW - Wizard® Junior Card Game by U.S. Games System | eBay

The cards are bright and colorful, and the game looks fun but I did note that most other reviews already knew how to play Wizards before purchasing the junior version. I bought these to play with my son on a trip, and while trying to learn anything with the distraction of other children around is difficult I found it very hard to figure out from the instructions alone.

Wizard - card game - Rules and strategy of card games

Wizard is a modern card game that was created in 1984 by Ken Fisher of Toronto. It is similar to the classic game Oh Hell and utilizes the theme of bidding the number of tricks a player expects to win in each (progressive) round of play. The unique feature of Wizard is the use of two special cards: the Wizard and the Jester.
